

Pilot sites for the Family Connections in Correctional Facilities Project

Nov 2018

The National Institute of Corrections along with our partners, BJA and Urban Institute, is pleased to announce The Family Connections in Correctional Facilities Project has officially selected five pilot sites for implementing training and technical assistance centered on incarcerated parents and their children. The following sites will receive training and technical assistance as a collaborative initiative with the National Institute of Corrections, Bureau of Justice Assistance, Urban Institute and Community Works-West.

New York City Department of Corrections

Connecticut Department of Corrections

Oregon Department of Corrections

Dane County, Madison Wisconsin

Harris County, Houston Texas